WOODBURN & NURSERY AZALEAS

Welcome

Here at Woodburn Nursery & Azaleas, we strive to continually improve our efficiency and production of quality plant materials. We have recently begun learning to use Ceres Imaging, a new technology that allows us to detect insect issues and ensure overall plant health through the use of high definition aerial imagery. We continue to move forward with our beneficial insects, expanding our lab, and refining our techniques through field trials. We are also in the research and development phase for a pruning machine for our pot-n-pot to increase productivity and plant quality. Woodburn Nursery & Azaleas is committed to learning and expanding our knowledge of various technologies. We seek to improve plant health and plant quality for each and every one of our customers.

Woodburn Nursery & Azaleas partnership with our customers is of top importance and priority. The use of these technologies will further our quality production so we can provide our customers with the best materials.

We would like to thank each of our existing customers and welcome new customers! We wish each of you a successful year!
